

BRADBOURNE OF BRADBOURNE, DERBYS
BRADBOURNE OF HOUGH IN ASHBOURNE, DERBYS

ARMS:

CREST:

In the reign of John, the lord of the manor [of Bradbourne, Derbys]. Sir Geoffry de Caulis or Cauceis, who was a priest and probably rector as well as lord of the manor, conveyed the manor to Godard de Bradbourne, and it was thereafter held by the family (part of the time under the Earls Ferrers) till the end of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, when it was sold by William the eldest son and heir of Sir Humphrey Bradbourne to his brother-in-law Sir Humphrey Ferrers in 1594. But long before this time, namely in [? the middle of] the 13th century, Roger, a great-grandson of Godard had purchased an estate at Hough in Hlland, which was then a chapelry in the parish of Ashbourne. The estate at Hough was held by the Bradbournes for over 300 years, in the earlier part of the period under the Earls of Lancaster, and it was for adherence to the cause of the Earl of Lancaster, rather than that of the king, that Henry, eldest son of Roger, was executed at Pomfret in 1322. [DAJ 1936 113-4]

In Wolley's MS. History of Derbyshire, written about 1712, it is stated, that there is at Hlland [Hough] "a piece of ground moated about in Mr. Burrows grounds, which was said to be the scite of a house of Sir Humphrey Bradbourne. It now mostly belongs to Isaac Burrow Esq. of Derby, whose father John Burrow bought it ... Here is a chappel of ease, but little used." [COX II 413]
